After Terminal

Before you start reading, please keep in mind that this is the first thing like this I ever wrote in English, so it wasn't easy, but I did my best. :) Also if you want me to continue on this story and make it more of a "real" sequel instead of a fluffy love story, please let me know in the comments. Now enjoy the reading. :)

The girl stood completely still. The clear water in the river reached up to her knees. She held the scythe right above the surface, ready to strike if a fish swam by. Suddenly, she heard something behind her in the forest.

Without the slightest of sounds, the young girl waded out of the river. She heard the sound again. It sounded like a big animal was walking towards the river. She hid behind a tree as the animal came closer. Elliott now realised that it was not an animal making the sounds, but a human. No way! Another human! She immediately thought of Will, hoping that he in some way got into The Garden. The person suddenly came out of the forest, and slowly walked into the river. Elliott could only see the back of the human, but she immediately rose the scythe. She could tell that it was a male styx, wearing the clothes of a colonist. He was pretty bulky and muscular compared to other styx and had a shaved head. She sneaked up behind the styx and hit him hard in the head with the flat side of her scythe. The man got knocked out, and fell headless straight into the water. Even though Elliott was very thin, she could easily lift the man, who was quite heavy for being a styx out of the water. She dropped the man face down at the shore, but then when she turned the man to see his face, she got both shocked, afraid and happy at the same time.

Will opened his eyes. He looked around, and saw a jungle. Was he dead? Is this heaven? Then the memories started to return. He remembered waking up in The Garden, close to The Tower. He had felt really strange, in some way he felt stronger and also a bit taller. But worst and strangest of all, he had lost his hair. He was afraid that it was cancer, even though you probably would not feel stronger in that case. While thinking of it he lifted his hand to touch his bald head. The head was very sore at one spot, and it felt like someone had hit him. Hard. He looked around again. How the hell did he get into The Garden? He just woke up here, in it. Then he remembered. Maybe he turned into a styx after all. That would explain why he felt stronger and taller. While thinking, he heard a very familiar voice behind him. 'Hey sleepyhead', Elliott said. 'ELLIOTT'! Will screamed, he turned his head around, and there she stood. As beautiful as always. She was very lightly dressed, with some shorts that revealed her tanned and very muscular legs. She was also wearing a very short top, that made her toned stomach visible. She was the most perfect thing Will could imagine. 'Wow! You look amazing!' Will said. He stood up, and ran straight to her, giving her a long and tight hug. Then they just stood there, looking at each other. They were so happy that they were together, all by themselves in the garden. While looking into Elliott's beautiful eyes, he closed his and started to kiss her. Elliott wasn't slow to respond, and they now kissed intensively. While kissing, Will laid Elliott down on the ground and laid himself above her. He let his fingers explore the parts of Elliott that wasn't covered by clothes, thus her legs and stomach. He could hear that her breathing became heavier. They stopped kissing and just looked at each other. 'Will, I love you', Elliott said. 'I love you too!' Will responded. 'I really do, and I've loved you for a very long time', he continued. They continued kissing for a very long time, until Elliott fell asleep in Will's arms. Maybe this was heaven after all, Will thought.
